CAMPRELL'S CAREER.

Interesting Sketch of the Lite of Our Next Governor,

James E. Campbell did not desire the Democratic nomination for Gov ernor of Ohio this year, but now that his friends and admirers have named him as their standard bearer regardless of his own wishes he is promising, Campbell like, to "hump himself" for victory in the coming campaign. Mr. Campbell is of Scotch-English descent and is a native of Middletown, Butler county, O., which fact, and the additional fact that he has once been elected Governor by the Democracy, are the reasons why he is called the "Butler county mascot" by his supporters and admirers He is 52 years of age and is a naval veteran of the late war. He attended the first log cabin school in the county and later studied the three R's at a neighboring academy.

As trade conditions draw gold from our shores, as is common in some seasons of the year, the government must buy gold or commit the unpardonable crime of

But for the courage and patriotism of President Cleveland our financial condition would to-day be most embarrassing, and if his counsels shall be respected by the next Congress the present humiliating spectacle of the treasury being dependent upon Wall street speculators will perish forever. THE MAMMOTH.

IT PAYS to be honest always. Honest in ACT, in THOUGHT, in WORD, in ADVERTISING. It would be the very height of folly for us to advertise bargains that have no existence, and yet it is done right here in Lima. Anything to draw the people. We don't see things that way, nor do we want to. No man, woman or child in Lima or Allen County can truthfully say we ever advertised an article or a garment at a given price that we failed to produce when called for. Hence the people's confidence in our advertisements; hence our success. And on this line we will fight it out to the end. The special bargains quoted below are on our counters now.

AT FALLEN PRICES.

FOR LABOR, business and dress, the most complete stock at $8, $10, $12 and $15; every make that bears the stamp of fashion; every fabric that has a well founded claim to merit all the latest mixtures in Oxfords, Grays, English, French and German Worsteds, Harris Cassimeres, Homespuns, Irish and Scotch Woolens, made up into garments of unimpeachable style; an assortment equal to the combined stock of any three clothing houses in Lima. Not a single suit carried over from last year. Each and every garment is new, of the latest fashion, fall of 1895 and specimens of the highest tailor's art. We have higher priced goods, of course, and lower as well; and absolutely guarantee

Clinton river in Michigan was most painful and fatiguing. "My father settled on White river in central Indiana in 1802, but he had made a trip to the Wabash in 1800. He remained at his trading tear until the Britain in 1812. Len he joined the crees under General Harrison at Fort Moles, on the Mannee river, and with his brother John acted as guide and invermeter for General Harrison. He was sent by the general down the Wabash to the Miamis. Rattawatomies and Shawners, to learn if possible their intentions and attitude in the approaching trouble with British forces. He knew Tecumbe and his brother, the nodded. Prophet, intimately. The Prophet often befriended him and was a trustworthy driend. My fother always spoke well of these Indians. He had many conversations with Tecamibe in regard to the attitude of the Indian tribes under his direction and his reasons for his adherence to the British cause, and his cooperation with that country in the war what followed. Tecumble complained bitterly of the lack of faith on the part of the United States in regard to performance of treaty stipulations and contrasted it with the policy as carried out by Great Britain in its management of Indian affairs in Canada. He felt that there was no security for the Indian and clearly foresaw that the time twas not distant when the Indian would possess little or no part of the domain he had inherited from his fathers. 'Tecunithe seemed to be fully aware that step by step the tribes would be pushed farther west or exterminated by the bitterness and hate of the white man. With a power warlike and aggressive as Great Britain to back and ally the Indian, he hoped to put off the final day and possibly save a remnant

My father said he had a persuasive tengue and a power to move his fellow savages rare indeed. and he never failed to rally the red man on to the war path. His nature was not maturally a savage one, and he often expressed abhorrence of unnecessary blood-

"He declared that he would not tolerate cruelties or predatory warfare on peaceful, noncombatant settlements of white people, but he felt it his duty to rally the tribes and inflame them to a point of resistance and fair warfare sagainst the government of the United states, which had for a hundred years persistently pushed the Indians from their homes and the places which that government had assigned to them with solemn riedges that they should always retain such as their future homes, and that it would protect them from the westless greed of white pioneers. "My father was in command of 300 Sriendly Indians at the battle of the 'Thames, in Camela. His command was sattached to Colonel Paul's regiment in Ehat battle. His Indians did some good zervice and contributed to the defeat of whe British and Indians.

"After the battle, late in the aftermoon, he was summoned to the headquarwers of Colonel R. M. Johnston, who stated to him that it was the remor that whe great chief Tecamine was among The slain in battle and requested my father to take some of his friendly Inrlians and search the field and ascertain if it were incaed true. My father imanediately took with him four or five Delawares and began the search, which was successful. When they found the body, some of the Indians were not sure that it was that of Tecumthe.
